

IN A BONDING of faith, a Muslim helps a Hindu priest clean the floor of a mosque where the pundit has lived for over 20 years in Hyderabad's old city, which witnessed communal riots leading to security forces firing teargas shells and warning shots.

LUCKNOW | Son Shine

The Samajwadi Party's search for a unique mix of tech-savvy and desi glamour is well underway. Now that Amar Singh has turned his back on the SP, party chief Mulayam Singh Yadav's son Akhilesh Yadav is being pitched as its new, modern and forward-thinking face. At Mulayam's behest, Akhilesh—MP and state president of the SP—is aggressively marketing the party to the youth. He is being sent on cycle yatras and marches to place himself as the chief contender against the BSP in the 2012 assembly polls. The party will launch its new website www.samajwadiparty.com and is airing cellphone ringtones based on nationalist songs and the party's ideology. Mulayam has also set up a photo gallery of leading socialist leaders in Lucknow. "We plan to add more than 200 rare pictures to the 30 photos from Dr Ram Manohar Lohia to Raj Narain to Janeshwar Mishra," says Akhilesh.

MULAYAM (LEFT) AND AKHILESH

MANEESH AGNIHOTRI / www.indiatodayimages.com

by Subhash Mishra