

All for One

Vivek Oberoi's comeback film Prince may be less about him than he thought. What we are more interested in is the trio of Nandana Sen, Neeru Singh and Aruna Shields. The fiery triplet went through a training period in South Africa before they could swank their guns in front of the camera. With three women vying to win the prince, things must have got sticky even offscreen. But Neeru Singh says, "We got along well. There were no problems between us or our friendship." Should we read between the lines?

(L TO R) SEN, SINGH AND SHIELDS

SONG & CHANCE

Actors have a whole lot more on their plates now. First Farhan Akhtar sang his way into the country's heart. Now Hrithik Roshan is hoping to do the same. After wowing us with his dancing skills, Roshan is going to sing. Director Anurag Basu pushed him into crooning Kites in the sky for the film Kites. He has teamed up with Suzanne D'Mello for the soulful number. "Suzanne came to help me and she is also the female voice in the song." What's next in this sky of opportunities?

MANDAR DEODHAR

The Right Keys

While kids were playing with toys, five-year-old Mishka Rushdie Momen was discovering the magic in her fingers. By six she was the youngest piano student at London's Purcell School of Music. Now the 18-year-old is taking the stage with her first solo performance in Mumbai on April 2. This, while she hasn't even completed a music degree from London's Guildhall School of Music and Drama. Salman Rushdie must surely be proud of the young talent in the family.

IT'S A TIE

It is a match made in disputed territory, between two nations, that is not the soon-to-be husband and wife. Tennis diva Sania Mirza (left) will marry Pakistan's former cricket captain Shoaib Malik.

When April 9 or rather just over two months since the break-up of her engagement to old family friend Sohrab Mirza.

That happened because reportedly, Mr Mirza couldn't cope with Ms Mirza being the centre of all the attention.

So Mr Malik showed up as chief candidate when she was playing events and he was playing cricket matches in Dubai and Hobart.

But wasn't he already engaged? Via long distance to Ayesha Siddiqui, a Hyderabad girl in 2002. Fell apart as he didn't find her glamorous enough.

No gentleman, this? He's banned from playing for Pakistan due to "infighting".

His benefits He is now one of the "hot searches" on the Cricinfo website.

Her gains A new, posh apartment in Dubai and better international flight connections than Hyderabad.
