

POWER MEALS

With IPL chief Lalit Modi and NBA president Heidi Uberroth.

HOT WHEELS

Bolero Stinger, Mahindra's answer to the Humvee.

SHRIYA PATIL SHINDE/www.indiatodayimages.com

10

ANAND MAHINDRA

53, Industrialist (12)

Hard Drive

Because through the worst of times he symbolised true entrepreneurial optimism.

Because when the automobile sector was reeling under negative growth, he launched new vehicles, when the software sector was in trouble, he bought Satyam and when the capital market was tanking, he put up Mahindra Holidays for listing.

Because he could tell a stunned audience in Davos in January 2009 that the economy would turn around by mid 2009 and it did.

Because Mahindras will now make aircraft following the acquisition of Aerostaff Australia and Gippsland Aeronautics.

Because what was once a jeep and tractor maker is a 118-company conglomerate with interests ranging from defence equipment to design studios.

Because in a bad year, he steered group revenues from Rs 29,000 crore to Rs 32,000 crore and group market capitalisation from Rs 17,000 crore in April 2009 to Rs 64,000 crore.

New indulgence Twitter, with over 30,000 followers.

Is excited about The Mahindra NBA Challenge which he dubs as the bottom of pyramid nursery for talent.

Embarrassed about Winning four awards for business leadership this year.

BANDEEP SINGH/www.indiatodayimages.com

SUNIL BHARTI MITTAL

52, Industrialist (4)

Global Roaming

Because he is the biggest telecom player with over 126 million subscribers and the poster boy of India's economic reforms.

Because through tariff wars and increasing competition, he has continued to be the biggest icon of India's fastest growing sector.

Because he has acquired 70 per cent of Warid Telecom in Bangladesh and is on the Telecom Board of the International Telecommunication Union, the leading UN Agency for Information and Communication Technology.

Because he persisted and won the battle to team up with Walmart for a pan-India retail chain.

Because he has the gumption to enter into talks to acquire the $10.7 billion Zain Africa.

Is devoted to Bharti Foundation, which offers free education to 30,000 underprivileged children in rural India.

Making music With 220 million music downloads, which is 418 music pieces per minute in 2009, Airtel is the largest music distribution company in the country.

POWER TALK

Airtel now carries 1.7 billion minutes of conversation every day.

COOL CELL

His Blackberry Bold 9000.

