

KAMAL NATH (LEFT), NITIN GADKARI (CENTRE) AND DAYANIDHI MARAN

THE POLITICS OF PROGRESS

“Even rich countries hand out freebies”

“The challenge lies in managing growth and infrastructure deficit”

KAMAL NATH

UNION MINISTER OF ROAD
TRANSPORT AND HIGHWAYS

Today, not only has the world's perception of India changed, but our own perception of ourselves has too. The more we see western economies in distress the more the world looks at India as an investment destination and as a credible country. As India moves on the growth trajectory, it is not merely a challenge of attaining and sustaining growth. The challenge is in managing growth. And by that I mean the kind of growth that is acceptable to Indian people. Growth that is equitable in a democracy is the most important challenge that we face today. So, if we move on our growth trajectory, the challenges of managing growth are tough as all sections of society and all parts of India have to benefit. Today the voter understands and I think we have a very mature Indian voter. This makes India a credible country that has the power to sustain itself on the growth trajectory. As we move on, the biggest challenge we