

LUCKY STRIKE

Delhi footballer Sunil Chhetri, 25, is making it big. He will play for the US football club Kansas City Wizards, becoming the second Indian after Baichung Bhutia to play for an international club. The final details of the contract are being negotiated. Chhetri says, "I feel great and optimistic knowing that I might end up playing for a league that is ranked 14th in the world." It's a loss for Dempo Sports Club, the club he represented. We can't help but cheer.

STARRY EYED

Bollywood is attracting foreigners in droves. The latest import is American Indian Nihana Minza, 22, making her acting debut in Sama. Although she only moved from Miami to Mumbai a month ago, she's no stranger to the industry. She was an assistant to the producer for the US shoots of Dostana. "One day I would like to own a production company and write scripts," she says. This brainy beauty is already dreaming big.

Oscar Power

Now, here's something the Thackerays would be proud of. Geeta Gandbhir, 39, a Maha-rashtrian born and raised in the US, won an Oscar for editing the documentary Music By Prudence. The film looks at child disability in Zimbabwe. "A strong editor is key to the success of a documentary film," she says. Gandbhir has been in the film and TV field for 15 years and also runs a production house. And having grown up in a large, extended Maharashtrian family, she speaks Marathi too.

The Rich Project

Mir Azmet Ali Khan (left) 50, is no ordinary photographer. He is the grandson of the last Nizam of Hyderabad, Mir Osman Ali Khan, who was the world's richest man of his time. And he is making a documentary on his fabulously rich grandfather who ruled Hyderabad in the early 20th century. "This is a glorious and complex chapter in history," says Khan, who has worked with Richard Attenborough and Steven Spielberg. Now we are royally interested.
