

Just 1411 left.

Our national animal is fighting for its life. From around 40,000 at the turn of the last century, there are just 1411 tigers left in India. If we don't act now, we could lose this part of our heritage forever. Speak up, blog, share the concern, stay informed.... Every little bit helps. Aircel has partnered with WWF-India to help save our tigers. Visit www.saveourtigers.com to know how you can help.

1411 is the average estimate of India's wild tigers, as per the monitoring exercise by Wildlife Institute of India in association with NTCA, Govt of India in 2008. • *Aircel has partnered with WWF-India to help save our tigers. Trademarks used here belong to it's respective IPR holders