

CALLING THE SHOTS

Blame it on the fantastic placement opportunities and the enviable pay packets. A course in master of business administration (MBA) opens the door to various sectoral opportunities. From a corporate firm to a media house, new age managers are majorly responsible for changing the way organisations function. Be it human resources, finance or even business, there are plenty of options available for an MBA aspirant. One can also pursue a management course in agribusiness, rural management, operations and logistics, forest management, communications, and insurance and risk.
