History in the MAKING

Reputed photojournalist Kulwant Roy shot a series of rare images documenting the tumultuous years immediately before and after Independence. After his death in 1984, they remained forgotten for 20 years before they were restored and catalogued by photographer and Roy's associate Adita Arya. In the process, he uncovered an extraordinary visual archive of major events and national leaders, many unpublished, of India's tryst with destiny. The images on these pages are from the book, History in the Making, to be published shortly by HarperCollins, with an introduction by Prime Minister Manmohan Singh.

In 1938, Mahatma Gandhi visited Khan Abdul Ghaffar Khan, the towering Pashtun spiritual leader and a close ally, in the latter's native village of Utmanzai.
