

Gandhi with his close aide Acharya Kripalani, who was Congress president at the time of Independence. Later he became a strong critic of Nehru, who played down his demand that the party's views should be sought in all Government decisions.

A pensive Nehru at an annual cricket match between the Prime Minister's eleven and the President's team in which he participated regularly, despite his lack of sporting expertise.

