

PET Indulgences

Man's best friend never had it so good with a range of exotic products and services catering to every pet fetish

| By Malini Bhupta |

Whoever coined the term "it's a dog's life", clearly didn't inhabit the world of Chewy Vuitton, Bark Jacobs and Christian Audigier by Chrome Bones—luxury brands that design clothes, jewellery and furniture, exclusively for pretty pooches. Forget the Mercedes and solitaires, pets are the latest status symbols and pet parents, as pet owners are now known, are going the distance to spoil their furry bundles of joy with a host of products and services. Most would think that the pet business in India ends with branded food and hovers around Rs 300 crore. But with the growth of the pet industry, on offer are custom-made pup cakes from the Barkery, four-poster beds and birthday parties in luxury resorts.

As more and more Indian homes are increasing their family's headcount by adding a pet, the opportunity and demand for spoiling has also increased. Pets are no longer just playthings or glorified guards, they have become extensions of their owner's personality. If it's a nuclear family with a single child or a DINK (double income

Pet Pampering
It's no more just about animal love. From branded clothes to furniture, weekends at a spa to custom-made treats, pet owners are going that extra mile to make their little darlings feel special.

Photographs by REUBEN SINGH/www.indiatodayimages.com

Petsberg

Run by a former advertising professional, Andrea Cyrill Khurana, it's a mobile grooming service and has an online shopping website. A vanity van provides doorstep service, bathing and grooming pets. Charges for a small dog would be about Rs 650.

