

(FROM EXTREME LEFT) AFTER THE ATTACK ON THE AMERICAN CENTRE; INTERPOL'S RED CORNER NOTICE ON REZA; PARTHA ROY BURMAN

manager Sandipan Das, who was kidnapped and released between Friday and Sunday. Of course, Das had been out late from office but to suggest that topnotch industrialists like Sanjeev Goenka and Sanjay Budhia should not take midnight strolls, makes the administration look downright silly. The statement shall, however, cheer up those in Karachi and Dubai from where these calls have originated.

Business barons, now in Delhi for the Confederation of Indian Industry national council meeting, had an informal discussion on security in Kolkata and the consensus was to "play it cool". One of those present said, "We request the media not to hype matters and make it look as if we are cowering, because we are not." The three at the receiving end of the calls belong to either the shoe business or the hotel sector as both are soft targets. While a Khadim may not be top bracket in India business, it is a big name locally as are the other two latest victims, Elite (shoes, again) and Hotel Hindustan International. Khadim is in the dock this time too. Another businessman from Howrah has already paid up and the police are not talking about him. Obviously, the four had been chosen with care.

The money sought for ranges from Rs 40 crore to Rs 100 crore. The IM is also in close contact with the banned Students Islamic Movement of India, which has sleeper cells in Kolkata and has infiltrated innumerable non-governmental organisations. However, the way Reza is going about things this time is ominous. Familiar with the Kolkata terrain and having a point to prove here after having made good his escape in 2002, he could be thinking in terms of an attack on the city, now that the Indian Mujahideen role in the Pune blasts has been all but confirmed. For that he needs money and for that, he could be finding his home turf the safest bet yet. ■ have asked all of them to take care of their personal safety. They should take care not to move out after midnight." Laughable but true, considering he said this on record. Obviously, the chief secretary is thinking in base terms because such advice could only be given in cases like the infotech
