Income from other sources

Any income other than the ones given above is classified under this head. This may include interest income, dividends, pension (other than from employer), gifts and lottery winnings, etc.

Deductions available: Dividends are not taxed in hands of recipients but companies are required to pay dividend distribution tax on the payout, which is then passed to the investor. Gifts and commuted pension are also exempt subject to ceilings.

CALCULATING YOUR TAX LIABILITY

Once you get to know your gross income by adding up everything you earned under the five heads of income, the next step is to find your net taxable income. The tax equation is fairly simple. Just subtract the deductions from the gross income to calculate your net taxable income.

Following are some of the common deductions that can be claimed:

SECTION	YOU HAVE TO	WHO CAN CLAIM	MAXIMUM DEDUCTION
80C	All taxpayers, HUF	Invest in PF, PPF, NSCs, bank FDs (over 5 years), Senior Citizen's Saving Scheme insurance policies, Ulips, pension plans and ELSS funds. Also covers kids' school fees and repayment of home loan	Rs 1 lakh
80D	All taxpayers, HUF	Buy a medical insurance policy for self, spouse, children or parents.	Rs 15,000; Rs 5,000 more for senior citizens. Additional Rs 15,000 for parents and Rs 5,000 more if they are senior citizens.
80E	All individual taxpayers	Take a loan for higher education	Interest paid is fully deductible
10 (13A)	Salaried taxpayers	Live in a rented house	Least of: HRA; rent less 10% salary; 50% salary (40% in non-metros)
24 (B)	All taxpayers	Take a home loan to buy, construct a house	Rs 1.5 lakh NRIs and expatriates not included in resident taxpayers category
