

MICRO ECONOMICS

ASHIMA GOYAL, Professor
Indira Gandhi Institute of Development Research

AJIT RANADE, Chief Economist,
Aditya Birla Group

RAJIV KUMAR, Director and Chief Executive
Indian Council for Research on International
Economic Relations

BIBEK DEBROY, Professor
Centre for Policy Research & International
Management Institute

S. MAHENDRA DEV, Chairman
Commission for Agricultural Costs and Prices

SIDDHARTHA ROY, Chief Economist
Tata Group

| By Shankkar Aiyar |

You could sit back and applaud Finance Minister Pranab Mukherjee for skilfully maintaining the equilibrium between politics and economics. The man who could easily qualify to be Napoleon's definition of a lucky general has rolled his dice well. The rural masses, rather the voting classes, are happy with the continuum, the promise of poverty alleviation. Certainly, the urban Indian is happy with the tax cuts even if upset about the petro price hike. India Inc is pleased that the rollback of the stimulus package was partial. To many, the reason to cheer is that the worst did not come to be. You could also be justified in being upset, impatient with the pace of change and describe Budget 2010 as a lost opportunity. Expectations are but