

SLIDE SHOW

Two stars from the south are going to twinkle in the Hindi film Striker. Siddharth, better known as Rang De Basanti's Karan who has been missing in action lately, has the lead role. Tamil star Padmapriya makes her Bollywood debut, playing the role of a Maharashtrian fisherwoman. Writer, director and producer of the film Chandan Arora says, "The film was made keeping Siddharth in mind. Both are powerful actors." The question is, will they strike a chord?

Canvas City

Self-taught artist Nayanaa Kanodia, 59, lost 10 friends and relatives in the 26/11 terror attacks. Her memories of the attack have found expression in a series of paintings that feature in an exhibition titled A City Wakes Up Inside Me. The economist-turned-painter used to do more figurative work, but now she says, "After the attacks, I realised how important the city is in a person's life."

Calendar Girl

Priyanka Gandhi Vadra became the poster girl of brother Rahul's campaign. So it shouldn't be surprising that she's now the face of an online calendar—all 12 months of it. Pradip Rath, general secretary of Maharashtra Pradesh Congress Committee, came up with the unusual idea to commemorate 125 years of the Congress. What's more, two more calendars featuring Sonia and Rahul can also be downloaded from the same website. From political campaigner to calendar girl, what next Priyanka?

NO KIDDING

She's only 11 but Prachi Badve has already had her first showing as a fashion designer at the recently held Pune Fashion Week. "My theme was global warming," she explains. Armed with a diploma in fashion designing from the Vidyanchal Institute of Design in Pune, Badve hopes to go to Milan Fashion Week one day.
