

Man-nerism BOYFRIEND BLAZER

You don't really have to steal your boy's blazer. Get one that looks like his. The shoulders on the oversized blazer aren't as exaggerated as in the '80s. The sleeves are long but look best when rolled. Throw this over anything—a sheath dress, jeans, shorts and even a tulip skirt.

Raw Appeal DENIM

The blue jean gets an overhaul. It remains a closet staple but this year, it's ripped, studded and extreme acid washed. The boyfriend jean, pegged at the ankle, also hovers around. Kareena Kapoor and Shruti Hassan have already been channelling the ripped jean look.

Buzzwords

Unfriend

Remove from Facebook

Hashtag

Hash sign added to word or phrase that leads to similar words tagged

Intoxicated

Distracted by text messages while driving

Sexting

Sexually explicit messaging

Freemium

Business services provided for free

Recessionista

A person who manages to look stylish and trendy on a strict budget

Funemployment

People newly unemployed using free time to have fun or pursue other interests

Choice Mom

Choose to be single mom

Aporkalypse

Undue worry due to swine flu

Do a Salahi

Gatecrash a VIP party

Michelle Effect BELTS

Skinny, broad or corseted, belts were biding their time on the sidelines till Michelle Obama made them a wardrobe staple. You can make a statement with an embellished wrap.

High and Mighty BOOTS

There's nothing subtle about these towering boots. Though winter won't last long, indulge in these dangerously high boots that extend to your knees and sometimes all the way up to your thighs.

Bold and Beautiful ACCESSORIES

This year will all be about making the right fashion statement. But that doesn't mean bling abuse. Keep your clothes well cut and clean but go bold with one piece of eye-catching jewellery. A statement necklace in metallic and enamel or an encrusted bib necklace adds instant glamour. You can also slip your arm into a jewelled cuff.

All is well
news

RELIANCE
Life Insurance