

AP

Getting it Right

Michelle Obama made all the right statements at President Barack Obama's state dinner with Prime Minister Manmohan Singh as guest of honour. Not only did she hit a style high, she was politically correct when she chose to wear a silver-sequin, flesh-coloured gown by India-born designer Naeem Khan. Oh, and let's not miss those bangles. Très chic? Absolutely.

YOGEN SHAH

JUMPING THE GUN

Forget a successful run, Shazahn Padamsee doesn't even have a released film to her credit. And yet, thanks to a super-active public relations machinery, the girl who debuts in Rocket Singh: Salesman of the Year with Ranbir Kapoor has been all over the tabloids. If one day it's her kissing scene with Ranbir that gets print space, the next day it's her hook-up with him. The latest is that it's actually actor Prateik Babbar she's been snuggling up to. We have two words. Stop it.

SHRIYA PATIL SHINDE/www.indiastarimages.com

Not Cricket

M.S. Dhoni and team may be slipping but the skipper's doing the good citizen thing: starring in an ad urging Jharkhand to vote.

Vinod Kambli incessantly talks about his relationship with Sachin Tendulkar. First on Sacch Ka Saamna and now on Bigg Boss.

FUN AND FEARLESS

The red carpet turnout at the Cosmopolitan Fun Fearless Female awards shone as bright as the stiletto shaped trophy.

DESIGNER OF THE DAY Monisha Jaising may not have been there but the designer made her presence felt when Katrina Kaif (left) and Deepika Padukone (right) strutted in her Couture Week dresses.

FUN MOMENT Shah Rukh Khan sang Tujhe dekha toh yeh jaana sanam in a woman's voice, obliging the magazine that wishes he were a woman, so he could be on the cover. He won the Fun Fearless Male of All Time.

MALE METER Cosmopolitan awarded Abhay Deol with the best Upcoming Actor prize. In true maverick style, Deol ditched a tux and wore a fun yellow skinny tie and rolled-up sleeve shirt.

COSMOPOLITAN

COSMOPOLITAN

