

What to look for in a Business Shirt

Fabric: You should feel comfortable in them. Cotton is ideal, but of the kind that does not wrinkle.

Collar: It should fit comfortably around your neck. You should be able to insert two fingers between your neck and the collar. Always try out the shirt before buying and button it up all the way to the collar to see how it looks.

Stitch: A good quality shirt would always feature single-needle stitching (22 stitches per inch). Also make sure that the buttons are firmly attached, ideally using a cross stitch which makes them more durable.

Fit: Don't be shy of asking the salesman to measure you. Neck size and sleeve length are particularly important. Your cuffs should fall below your wrist but not below the base of your thumb.
