

REUTERS/ADNAN ABIDI

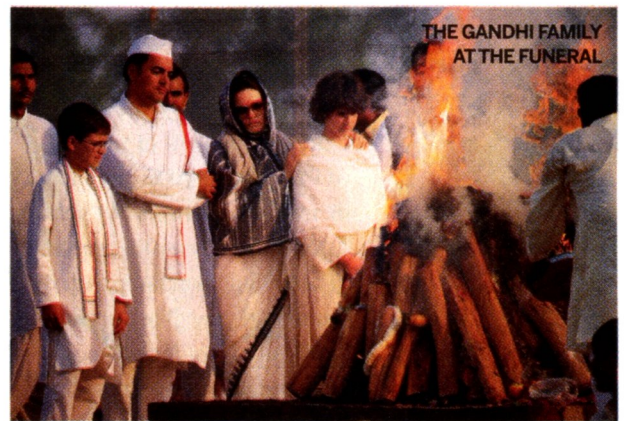

PARA GRAPH

PARATROOPERS FLOAT down over Agra during Cope India 09, a six-day joint exercise of the Indian Air Force and the United States Air Force even as a local cyclist seems oblivious to the drama unfolding high up above him.

DELHI | Remembering Indira

On October 31, it will be exactly 25 years since Indira Gandhi was assassinated by her bodyguards on the lawns of her official residence. The Congress is planning a series of events to commemorate her life and times. The morning prayer meeting at Shakti Sthal will be followed by a musical tribute, and the I&B Ministry and Delhi Government are coordinating with senior party leaders Janardhan Dwivedi and Motilal Vora to put together a two-day-long exhibition of more than hundred photographs of the former prime minister and a documentary film on her. The venture has brought Delhi Chief Minister Sheila Dikshit and I&B Minister Ambika Soni, who otherwise don't see eye to eye, together. Clearly, at a time when the Nehru-Gandhi brand name is at a premium, the Congress is going all out to pay tribute to its Dear Leader. A quarter century after her death, Indira remains the biggest unifier in the Congress.

by Priya Sahgal

THE GANDHI FAMILY AT THE FUNERAL

A QUARTER CENTURY AFTER HER DEATH, INDIRA REMAINS THE BIGGEST UNIFYING FACTOR IN THE CONGRESS.