THE WATERS of the Ghaggar river swirl over a woman as she prays to Surya, the sun god, for the betterment of her family and society and for the fulfilment of her wishes during the Chhath festival near Panchkula in Haryana.

KERALA | The Ego Has Landed

The clock is ticking; the match referee is getting impatient with Indian cricket's enfant terrible Shanthakumaran Sreesanth. Now the Kerala State Cricket Association (KSCA) has issued the gifted but gaga fast bowler a 'last warning' after he stayed absent from the Kerala team's Ranji Trophy camp. This when he is the captain. T.C. Mathew, secretary, KSCA, said they are 'grossly upset' and had warned Sreesanth for the last time because their most famous cricketer was "dancing at a nearby function when he should have been at the camp". Sreesanth bowled a yorker at the KSCA, denying charges and saying he'd informed them in advance. The incident, he said, was the result of "some people outside the association conspiring against me". The Kerala Express stated he was entitled to 10 days leave after returning from county cricket. Kerala's Ego has landed. Again.
