“ We can't resist playing politics. In Bengal, the Trinamool Congress is playing politics and the Centre is unable to check its ally.

The Maoist agenda is not Congress or non-Congress governments, their agenda is India.

We should start by not making Naxal-affected areas a punishment posting but by sending the right people. If we keep ignoring it, the situation will only worsen.

The fact is many political leaders have a direct nexus with the Naxals.

The increase in Maoist violence is because of their link with Nepal. This vulnerability will be exploited by them. **”

“ You cannot wait for recruits from the jungle warfare schools. Create a force of young retired armymen for the next ten years.

Our policemen are not prepared for this zone at all. Why are they being used as cannon fodder?

We need to connect the states to form a Special Security Zone (SSZ) under a single command.

The Centre in concurrence with the states can create SSZs in affected areas.

Why is Andhra safe today? Because of the Greyhounds. You pressure Naxals here, they run elsewhere. Why can't the country work together? ” homes in India are affected by Naxal violence. This is something which is happening in the North-East.

Chidambaram has recognised the problem and this is a big step forward. It is absurd to talk of military action. The Naxals will disappear and attack again. The increase in Naxal violence is because of their link with Nepal. This is one vulnerability the Maoists will exploit. We still find it difficult to resist the temptation of playing politics. In West Bengal, it is well known that the Trinamool Congress is playing politics and the Central Government finds it difficult to keep its ally in check. The air force chief is seeking permission to shoot in self-defence. Even if they are shot at, we must realise that the target is not bang in front of you. If a helicopter starts shooting in an area, it can create havoc.

Kapil Kak: (Interjection) You don't fire in an area, you fire at a point. For firing against our people, the Indian Air Force needs political clearance. Let me clarify. What the chief said was that my helicopter is inducting troops in that area which is surrounded by Naxals. My helicopter is under fire. One of the flight engineers was killed on the ground by Naxals.

Marwah: Sending the army also will be terrible. Except in Chhattisgarh, the situation on the ground has not reached a point where Naxals dominate an area completely. You have to stop playing politics with the Chhattisgarh and West Bengal governments. Even now, a senior Congress leader says that non-Congress Governments are not cooperating. The Maoist agenda is not Congress or non-Congress governments. Their agenda is India. Particularly after September 2004, when two major groups came together and formed the CPI (Maoist). There is an escalation after September 2004 and this will increase further. I am afraid the Centre is ruling Jharkhand—but what is happening there? They have lost control of the vital Ranchi-Jamshedpur road. They are playing politics. Fact is, every political leader has a direct nexus with the Naxals. This must end. If you want a comprehensive settlement, it must
