

SEX AND HEALTH: TWO SIDES OF THE SAME COIN

In conversation with world renowned sexologist Dr SK Jain

Dr S. K. Jain

The famous quote "Exercise is the best medicine" holds truth as Dr SK Jain unfolded many myths during his conversation. Exercise has many benefits - besides keeping you healthy, it also improves your skin texture, invokes positive attitude in life and above all boosts your confidence. There is one more fact. Only healthy person can enjoy sex and its benefits are more than exercise but at the same time the world famous sexologist warns that one should not do intercourse just for the sake of its benefits otherwise it just becomes another exercise. At one point of time exercise becomes boring so one should understand the difference between the two.

Dr. Jain thinks that only healthy person can enjoy sex. He lists many benefits of sex. Regular sex keeps away obesity. During half an hour sexual intercourse one burns 114 calories. To burn that much calories one will have to walk 2 km and 250 m. During sex the heart rate goes from 70 to 150 beats per minute (bpm) and only running can raise 150 bpm. The hormones released during sex calms the person and insomniacs can enjoy really good night sleep.

Dr Jain says that regular sex helps in fighting with many diseases. Stress is a major cause of many diseases and sex releases stress. During sex, hormones are released and they create endorphins which are immunity boosters and fights small infections like cough and cold. After sex, headaches are often cured. World renowned sexologist Dr Jain has found during his long practice that regular sex also helps in keeping away heart problems. He says, 'It's obvious.' During sex, heart rate goes up and blood circulation increases. As one takes deep breath, the oxygen reaches to every cell and one feels fresh. This freshness and skin glow comes when a person workout heavily in the gymnasium. In the bedroom, the pleasure and freshness comes after orgasm and ejaculation. But again sex and exercise are different as sex gives pleasure and health benefits both.

Dr Jain says that people get trapped by quacks for sexual problems. He believes that sex and health are complimentary to each other. Unhealthy people cannot enjoy sex and it affects their marital life. So it is important to keep good health and sex is the best health booster. One should do intercourse every day or twice/thrice a day. He believes that bedroom is not a playground where you can play as long as you want to but what matters is how much pleasure you had and how much satisfied you are.

Dr Jain emphasises on the benefits of safe sex. It not only bonds you emotionally with your partner but it also brings positive attitude towards life. Depression and anger evades and calmness and happiness pervades. Digestion improves, smelling power increases and eventually it boosts your confidence. Most important of all, it reduces your risk of prostate cancer.
