

Cost of Lifestyle

India's loss in terms of potentially productive years due to lifestyle diseases is among the highest in the world.

India is slated to lose $237 billion between 2005 and 2015 due to a drop in productivity, says the World Health Organization. Reason? Coronary problems in the young workforce.

51 working days and more are lost on an average by 24% of India Inc due to sickness and absenteeism in a year.

Reducing just one health risk increases an employee's on-the-job productivity by 9% and cuts absenteeism by 2%.

24% of corporate executives sleep less than six hours a day due to work pressure. The reduced productivity costs come to $150 billion a year.

Consumer Attitude

2 in every 5

Indian corporates added wellness programmes in 2008-09.

25%

drop in health care costs of corporates due to well-designed employee wellness programmes.

Does preventive healthcare increase the productivity as well as the profitability of a company?

82% Yes

14% Not sure

3% No

1% Not applicable

alternative remedies to modern medicine procedures. The wellness market is worth nearly Rs 27,000 crore, with the services market at Rs 11,000 crore and the wellness products industry at Rs 16,000 crore (approximately). The ayurveda market is clocking Rs 8,000 crore per annum, beauty services about Rs 1,500-1,600 crore, the fitness market is growing at 40 per cent, while the spa market is estimated at Rs 11,000 crore. On the nutrition front, as the latest Frost & Sullivan report (Indian Functional Foods and Beverage markets) shows the market for herbs, minerals, vitamins, omega fatty acids and probiotics is driving the Indian functional foods and beverages market—from $185 million in 2007 to reach $1,161 million in 2012.

So what if you have to pay more to achieve optimal health? There's enough money in pockets. The last decade saw the rise of a new class of wealth-makers in the wake of liberalisation. Today 1.6 million Indian households spend an average of $9,000 a year on luxury goods and services. There are 1.2 million "global Indian" households accounting for some Rs 2 trillion in spending power. Add to it the 300-million-strong middle class whose aspiration curve, fuelled by rising disposable income, is moving beyond homes, cars, credit cards and foreign trips. The number of people with more than $1 million in assets stood at 1,67,000 according to a 2008 CapGemini Merrill Lynch Asia Pacific Wealth Report. As exposure and awareness change the character of consumption—from saving to spending—the expense basket shifts from necessity to lifestyle. "Urban Indians are looking for

Source: FICCI-Ernst & Young survey. Wellness: Exploring the Untapped Potential. 2010

Nutralite™

Healthier than Butter

Zydus Wellness

CHOLESTEROL-FREE | NO HYDROGENATED FATS | NO TRANS FATS | LOW IN SATURATED FATS | RICH IN MUFA & PUFA | VITAMIN A, D & E