

A NEW AGE MASS COMMUNICATION INSTITUTE

Professionalism and specialization in education institutes is a requisite, and MassCoMedia achieves that in each and every aspect, bringing students at par with the industry. An institute which equips a student to be proficient in one of the chosen fields of media, it is truly a new age communication institute.

MassCoMedia is a new age mass communication institute, which was formed in 2007 to train students to be media professionals of industry standard grade. The institute is a brainchild of Divesh Nath its Managing Director and founder. He is also the Managing Editor and Publishing Director of Woman's Era and Alive magazines.

MassCoMedia is a premier mass-media institute for the study of broadcast journalism, TV production, print journalism, graphics, photography, animation, web content management, media management, advertising, PR, corporate communication, event management and marketing. MassCoMedia has a tie up with universities in India and Australia for imparting undergraduate and postgraduate programs in mass communication. The range of courses available varies from a three or six month short term course to diploma and degree courses.

Students at MassCoMedia get trained in an industry atmosphere for an easy opening into the professional field. Short films and presentations are key in ensuring that the students realize their potential. Emphasis by the faculty on all round development of skills including personality and confidence of a student is a unique aspect of our teaching methodology.

Programs and courses at MassCoMedia are in sync with the industry requirements using in-vogue infrastructure and equipment that includes two industry-grade TV, radio and photography studios at its 30,000 sq ft centrally air-conditioned five-work floor facility. It envisions transforming a student into a real professional. In the multitude of career options, entertainment and media industry today promises great potential. MassCoMedia focuses on practical training so that students do not face any problems when they step out into the media industry as professionals. Programs here are targeted not just towards students but also professionals and freelancers who wish to polish their skills.
