

NLSIU STRESSES ON ALL-ROUND EXCELLENCE IN ACADEMICS, CURRICULAR AND CO-CURRICULAR ACTIVITIES

vant courses keeping in mind the newer national laws as well as the impact of international laws.

NLSIU has laid emphasis on not just academic excellence but has also pushed students into taking part in national and international law and allied competitions. "The key is to push for record-breaking results in the area of academics, curricular and co-curricular activities," says Rao. No wonder NLSIU graduates are recipients of the coveted Rhodes Scholarship to Oxford almost every year.

Distinguished professors of law, jurists and judges visiting NLSIU and exploring joint research opportunities with institutions like Germany's Max Planck Institute for Comparative Public Law and International Law have also helped add to quality. Students are involved in in-depth

"We are striving to create an environment where students go out to change the social landscape as effective social engineers. Due to the free flow of academic interaction, NLSIU hopes to continue playing a key role in shaping the future."

studies of varied subjects—from the American Sarbanes-Oxley Act's influence on Indian corporate governance norms to data protection efforts in India or even dissecting the complex interplay between law and society.

NLSIU also organises several offtrack events like ethnic days, rock shows and music fests just to contrast with its famous NLSIU Debate, South Asia's largest parliamentary-style debating tournament. Despite the recession, this school has reported 100 per cent placement every year from top law firms in the country and abroad. Some students even shun lucrative offers to provide their expertise to social causes, so it is not surprising to see NLSIU graduates taking up human rights causes or green concerns.

NALSAR, the second on the list, was set up in 1998 and has now ventured into the frontier area of Law and Management and has introduced courses in cyber law, intellectual property rights, insurance and banking laws, civil aviation management, realty sector, law and administration and aerospace studies and research. It has a number of advanced centres for higher studies and research in SAARC policy and laws, disability studies, aerospace research, international humanitarian law, environmental laws, cyber laws and media laws.

NALSAR is to open a centre in Sharjah, UAE, for a one-year post graduate diploma in aviation law and air transport management in collaboration with the Institute of Applied Aviation Management, Calicut. It is collaborating with the National Academy of Construction, Hyderabad, to offer a one-year diploma course in law of contract administration and real estate management and a one-year postgraduate diploma course in the law of infrastructure and disaster management from this academic year onward. "We are an exclusive institution because our teaching is interactive and the students get the highest level of
