

JAIRAM RAMESH

Minister of State for Environment and Forests

Global Warming

Beijing or Delhi, Ramesh's best friend, controversy, was found shadowing his every footstep this year. Whether on BT Brinjal or dubbing the Home Ministry's policy on Chinese investments "alarmist and paranoid", he found himself in the headlines.

Achievements

I Revised the river pollution schemes by speeding up the projects under the National Ganga River Basin Authority.

I Tried to bring transparency in environmental clearance of projects.

Failures

I His ministry clashed with state governments and other ministries on various environmental issues.

I He wants several projects prepared by the states to be stopped, but it's not easy.

The Big Loss

Following periodic outbursts, Ramesh has lost out on the proximity he used to enjoy with 10 Janpath.

▼ 48%

KAMAL NATH

Minister of Road Transport and Highways

Work In Progress

Nath has the reputation of a go-getter. His appointment triggered hopes of a revival in the much neglected national highways project. Though ambitious, he too has struggled to get the road projects rolling.

Achievements

I In 11 months, 32 road projects have been awarded compared to eight projects last year.

I Created Central funding for state road transport units to boost public transport system in India.

Failures

I Despite the much-touted 20 km-a-day target, India is likely to build hardly 12-13 km of roads in a day.

I The target to award at least 1,000 km of expressways is yet to happen.

Big Battle

Charged the Environment Ministry with delaying clearances and blocking projects.

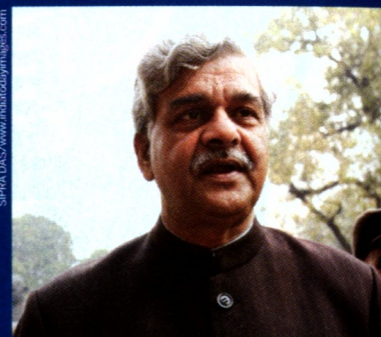

▼ 40%

SRIPRAKASH JAISWAL

Minister of State for Coal and Statistics and Programme Implementation

Low Octane

Jaiswal's big failure has been the no-show of Coal India's IPO despite his many statements that the process is on. He has been busy reviewing the new allotments of coal blocks and even de-allocated six of them.

The Big Change

Has kept a low profile and resisted the temptation of quotable quotes.

▼ 32%

SUBODH KANT SAHAY

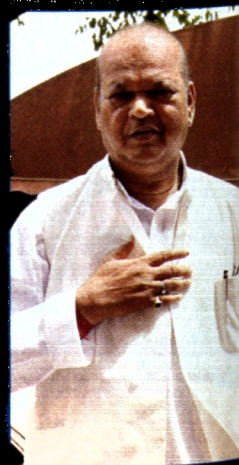

Minister of Food Processing Industries

Deep Freeze

Over Rs 72,000 crore is lost every year, thanks to a poor supply chain. Yet no concrete steps have been taken to plug the leak till now though Sahay has promised a separate food processing policy.

The Big Plan

He has now promised a basket of goodies, including a 20 per cent growth rate in the sector and of attracting investments Rs 1,00,000 crore by 2015.

▼ 31%