

The Sensitive Touch

First among the Central ministries to re-design its website, making it accessible to persons with disabilities.

MUKUL WASNIK

Minister of Social Justice and Empowerment

For a Cause

The debonair Wasnik knows how to work the system. He had been pitching for a budgetary increase and overnight, allocations for his ministry jumped from Rs 2,500 crore in 2009-10 to Rs 4,500 crore in the current budget. Another astute move is that he actively encourages NGO involvement in his ministry, something that will go down well with the Congress chief. Also wants to speed up cases filed under atrocities against SCs and STs.

Achievements

■ Launched the pilot project for the Pradhan Mantri Adarsh Gram Yojana for the integrated development of 44,000 villages having 50 per cent SC/ST population.

■ Readied the draft bill of the amended Persons with Disabilities Act (1995).

Failures

■ Has not been able to persuade the private sector with sops to employ people with disabilities.

■ Still to review the National Policy on Older Persons, 1999, and improve rehabilitation schemes for drug addicts.

KANTILAL BHURIA

Minister of Tribal Affairs

Missed Opportunity

Belonging to a tribal community, Bhuria was minister of state for agriculture in the previous regime. He was supposed to implement the UPA's vision for tribals. But is yet to constitute a committee to monitor implementation of projects and schemes for tribal and forest areas.

Big Failure

Should have been at the forefront of the development approach, considering that Naxalism afflicts tribal areas the most.

KRISHNA TIRATH

MoS for Women and Child Development

Missing in Action

With the Rs 2,300-crore Rajiv Gandhi Scheme for Empowerment of Adolescent Girls and the controversial Conditional Maternity Benefits, under which Rs 4,500 crore worth of cash benefits are to be given to mothers, she hopes a certain DWP ad will be a bad memory.

Pet Project

The National Mission for Empowerment of Women, her bit for the women's bill.
